NCE Computer Group wins the 2010 Storage Award for “Service Company of the Year”, with John Greenwood taking the much-coveted ‘Contribution to Industry’ award.

NCE Computer Group, leading Service Company and Data Storage & Virtualisation Reseller has once again scooped one of the UK’s top storage awards by winning the ‘Service Company of the Year Award’ at the prestigious 2010 Storage Awards held at the Tower Hotel in London.

Another evening highlight saw NCE’s John Greenwood deservedly win the ‘Contribution to Industry Award’ in recognition for his 17 years of service to the Storage industry.

John, Solution Sales Director at NCE Europe, commented on his industry accolade; “This was a genuine surprise and I’m very grateful to those that nominated and equally voted for me in this category. Having spent the vast majority of my time in the Storage Industry (11 years) at NCE and having played a part in the year on year growth of the business, I should also thank the great team that work with me on a daily basis to achieve our goal of being a well respected and successful storage player.”

Jim Raven, CEO of NCE continues; “It’s been another great night for NCE. For our Service division to be recognised in this way for the 3rd year running is a fantastic achievement for NCE, and for this we must thank the Storage Magazine readership for their votes and continued support. As for John winning his award, this just shows the magnitude of recognition and respect John has, not just within NCE, but also throughout the data storage industry as a whole. No one deserves this award more than John - I wish him my sincerest congratulations”
